Do you have the skills to develop a major heritage scheme?

The Stiperstones and Corndon Hill Country Landscape Partnership Scheme aims to conserve and restore natural and cultural heritage. Community participation, education and training will be key elements of the scheme as will physical improvements to nature habitats, industrial and cultural sites and access.

Working with a wide range of organisations and individuals from both sides of the WelshEnglish border, as Landscape Partnership Coordinator you will need to carry out community consultation and research to ensure the five year delivery stage of the project makes a positive difference to local communities and to the heritage.

You will work with local people and heritage organisations to develop the Local Conservation Action Plan and Stage 2 application to be submitted in October 2012. This will involve talking to a wide range of local people and organisations and managing a range of contracts on natural and cultural heritage, access and interpretation and training.

You will have exceptional community consultation skills and experience, project management and organisation skills and be able to analyse the results of this work to formulate an agreed approach, which is acceptable to the Heritage Lottery Fund and other funders, to spend around £2 million over five years.
